TO ISSUE THE BONDS UNLESS THEY ACT

CONGRESS MUST DO SOME-THING VERY QUICK.

One Hundred Millon Dollars Worth of Gold Four Percent Securities Will Be Issued Inside of Forty Fight Hours Unless Congress Does Something.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Curtis went to New York this morning and said that Secretary Carlisle would so his afternoon. If congress does not act in forty-eight hours one hundred million dollars in gold four per cent bonds will be issued. The currency question was much talked of yesterday.

In the course of the discussion Representative Walker (rep., Mass.) opposed the proposition of a fifty year year term for the bonds, and gave notice that he would offer an amendment for a shorter term. Other republicans stood with him on this objection, and also gave it as their views that greenbacks should not be retired unless the circulation was kept to its present volume by replacing the retired greenbacks with national bank notes.

The committee adopted an amendment, which was practically a compromise between two proposed by Representatives Brosius and Haugen, striking out the words "fifty years after date" and making the bonds "payable at the pleasure of the United States after ten years from the date of issue." The proposal to shorten the bond term met with nearly unanimous

Two other amendments to the bill were adopted. The first, proposed by Haugen (rep., Wis.) reduces the tax upon the circulation from 1 per cent per annum to one fourth of 1 per cent, payable semi-annually. The second, proposed by Walker (rep., Mass.) strikes out the fifth section of the bill -that requiring import duties to be paid in gold. The vote upon it was 6 yeas, 4 nays.

When the committee adjourned two upon to-day. One, offered by Mr. Russell (rep.) stipulates that the retirement and cancellation of legal tenders for each month shall not be greater than the increase in amount of national bank notes under the operation of the plan. Representative Walker stands sponsor for the other pending amendment, which is to require one half of the reserve funds of the banks to be held in gold coin or gold certificates, other half in silver coin or silver certificates. Ten per cent of the reserve is to be held in this stipulated form July 1, 1895; 20 per cent at the end of three months; the change being made at the rate of 10 per cent a quarter until completed. The discussion upon this amendment hinged on the point whether forcing the banks to secure gold for deposits would not cause a greater demand upon the treasury for gold than the raids which are now in progress. Chairman Springer says the committee will be able to report the amended bill to the house to-day. This is not certain, but the bill is a privileged one and can be called up at any time. How far the amendments will placate the opposition remains to be seen, but it is conceded the chances of the measure are much better in the house than in the senate. Its opponents are largely depending upon the free silver senators to talk it to death as they may be able to do in a body which has no rule by which it can fix a day for a vote.

IN THE SENATE.

The New York Chamber of Commerce Favors the President's Plan.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.-Mr. Hill (dem., N. Y.) presented in the senate vesterday a resolution from the New York chamber of commerce heartily approving the financial course of the President as given in his message. Mr. Manderson (rep., Neb.) presented a resolution directing the committee on finance to prepare a message having the following essential features:

(1) The secretary of the treasury to retain a reserve fund of $200,000,000 gold and $200,000,000 silver. (2) An issue of bonds payable in either gold or silver, at the option of the holder, for the maintenance of reserve. (3) Out standing legal tender notes to be redeemed in gold or silver, at the option of the holder, and not reissued. (4) For the next five years gold to be exchangeable for silver and silver exchangeable for gold. (5) national banks to be authorized to use the foregoing bonds as a basis for issuing notes and the tax on notes to be removed. (6) Import duties from countries having the gold standard to be payable in gold; and from countries having the silver standard to be payable in either gold or silver at the option of the importer. (7) Authorize the coinage of silver and gold at a ratio of 16 to 1, to the capacity of the

Mr. Manderson asked the immediate consideration of the resolution, but there was objection, and it was referred to the finance committee to be considered together with other plans. It Is Defeated 7 to 3 in the Senate Committee on Finance.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—At the morning meeting of the senate finance committee yesterday the various propositions embodied in the Jones, Vest, McPherson, Smith and Sherman bills were gone over. No disposition was shown to accept the recommendations of the President and there was but slight reference to his message. The proceedings of the afternoon session were based upon a bill which had been prepared by Senator Voorhees. The bill provided simoly for the issuance of short time certificates which were to be used for the purpose of making good the reserve and of meeting the revenue deficiency, but when the afternoon session opened he had added a clause. providing for the free coinage of silver. There was a motion to strike out a tie vote of 5 to 5, all the republican members and Senator McPherson (dem.) voting for the motion and all the democrats opposing it. A vote was then

CHANCE FOR ECONOMISTS.

Friends of the New Navy Expect a Hard

Fight to Secure Money. WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The friends of the "new navy" expect to have a hard fight in the house to secure the passage of that part of the appropriation bill providing for three new bat tle ships and twelve torpedo boats. They will have the weight of Secretary Herbert's recommendation behind them, but the depleted condition of the treasury will be the chief argument used to block the plan. Chairman Sayres, of the appropriation committee, has announced that he will fight the attempt to build new ships, and his position upon the bal will insure for him the co-operation of the ultra-economists of the house. The members of the naval committee find encouragement in the statement by Representative Wilson, in his recent speech, that the revenues will soon reach expenditures, and the hopeful assurances of the President's message to the effect that a deficit is not to be feared. They will use these authoritative statements in reply to the opposition, and are moreover relying upon republican votes for new ships.

DEBS CASE GETS A SET BACK. Judge Groscop Rales Against The Defense On a Serious Point.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—The defense in the Debs conspiracy trial received a heavy blow yesterday in the adverse ruling of Judge Grosscup on the point raised just before adjournment yesterday, while Witness Oliver L. Myron was on the stand. Counsel for the defendants objected to the admission of evidence as to overt acts unless it could be shown that they were done by the knowedge and under the direction of the officers and directors of the American Railway Union charged with having hatched the conspiracy to obstruct the mails. Judge Grosscup held that evishow that a conspiracy existed to stop all trains, and that this would include, necessarily, a conspiracy to stop the United States mails; in other words, that the greater conspiracy would include in its natural, reasonable and inevitable result, the less.

"The indictment in this case," said Judge Grosscup, "charges the defendants with conspiring to obstruct and at least 9,000 strong, well the government to prove that the spiracy was to obstruct the mails able result of an agreement to stop all trains should be to stop the mail trains the government may prove such substantial agreement. Whether this agreement was lawful or unlawful is the question on which the line of battle will be fought. If it was the purpose and intent that the purposes should be accomplished by unlawful means, by violence and laying hold of the trains, or any other means that would clearly be unlawful. then the effect of such an agreement would be to stop the United States mails. Now, one of the substantial facts as showing that agreement is the agreement itself, and it rests upon the government to show that there was such an agreement to stop all traffic. "Evidence may be introduced to show the connection; the government may show that the order issued to this witness, Myron, was executed. I do not see where the government can be restricted in showing that one of the agreements was to stop the trains or what was done the party receiving order from the officers of the American Railway Union. I will permit the government to show what the witness did in the execution of that order, but not what he said outside of the execution of such order. The conspiracy to stop all trains includes the stoppage of the United States mails."

Rockford Second Hand Store Keeper County Farmer Was Spliced in a Hurry Although He Had Never Seen going to be married." Mrs. Eylward Before.

"Several weeks ago Charles Rundle, who is associated with Mayor Hutchins in the monument business, and spends much of his time out on the road in the interests of the firm, was at Union, Wis., and met William Johnson, a wealthy old farmer, to whom he sold a tombstone for his first wife's grave. The old gentleman was living alone on a big farm and very much in need of a housekeeper. He broached the matter to Mr. Rundle, with the inquiry as to whether he knew where he could find a woman to run the house for him and who would not object to being his bride a little later on. Rundle told him that Rockford supplied the world with nearly everything from a match to a piano and he had no doubt but that he could do something for him in the line of a bride. When Mr. Rundle got home he met Superintendent Little of the old man up in the Badger state.

A SICK MAN CARRIED FROM A FIREY HOUSE

MILLER LAY IN BED WHILE HIS HOME BURNED.

Flames Broke Out in Two Residences at Clinton and as the Town Has No Fire Department Both Were Totally Destroyed-Some Contents Were

Clinton people carried a sick man out of a burning house Sunday night, the fire being the second one that raged in that town on that day. In both cases the loss was total as the town has no fire department and nothing could be done. 'The first house was owned by Mrs. Radway. The flames were first discovered while the people were at church. Volunteers were soon on hand but as the fire was already well started, nothing could be done to get out the things and let the building, which was an old timer and fortunately insured for its value, burn. The fire was thought to have started from an imperfect chimney. As there was little wind no adjacent property was destroyed. Mr. Fessenden and Mr. Meheffery, who lived in the house lost quite heavily, gotten out.

The second fire occurred at 6 o'clock in the evening. Jacob Miller, who resided in the house, was sick in bed and his family were sitting around a cheerful fire, little dreaming that the roof of their residence was in fismes. As there were no extinguishers, ladders, pails or water there, all that could be done was to hasten everything out of the house and let it burn. It is understood that Miller had $500 insurance on the property. Quite an agitation has been started since the fire in favor of buying apparatus. as the Clintonites didn't enjoy standing about in the snow and watching their houses burn.

MR. WILSON.

"A chilly town! A chilly town!" murmured H. Pemberton Wilson as he limped around to the sunny side of warehouse F and slowly let himself down to a recumbent position on the hot, tarry boards.

"A chilly town. That's what. Even in the summer time," said H. Pemberton Wilson as he threw a stray nail into the muddy slip and lazily watched the rings enlarge and lose themselves in faintest ripples. "You take any train, and it lands you here, and the only comfort of being here is that there's so many trains out. I s'pose my stomach thinks I'm tryin to go without anything for a week just on a bet. The country lanes must be sighin for me. I wonder if turnips are getting large enough?"

To designate H. Pemberton Wilson as a hobo would simply corroborate his opinion of himself.

He has carved "Hobo Wilson" on many a section shanty and milepost between Scranton, Pa., and Council Bluffs, Ia., and there were friends who knew him as Rooster.

On one Indiana trip he had earned the title of Come Again Wilson because he had a persistent way of getting on a train after once being put off.

Like many another of his class, he was not devoid of sentiment or philosophy. He carried in his breast pocket a speckled volume of Burns' poems. He had forgotten to return it to a public library in southern Illinois. The book opened of itself at the lines, "A man's a man for a' that." Hobo Wilson read the poem as he lay with his back against the warm boards of warehouse F, and then he put the book back into the pocket of his coat, which he had thrown down beside him.

At the bend in the river a coal vessel was being unloaded. The click of the machinery and the noisy dumping of the big buckets at the regular intervals became rather soothing when the rhythm was understood. Hobo Wilson tapped with his thumb, keeping time, and locked through the rigging of a lumber schooner in the second slip beyond at the coughing smokestack which reached up from a small planing mill. The mill was buzzing in changeable tones, like a nest of discordant bumblebees.

The smoke rolling from the stack drifted through the rigging, where the yards and netted lines seemed to cut into irregular shapes. Hobo Wilson watched drowsily until to his blurred vision there were many fantastic forms floating in the foggy maze. And he was not greatly surprised when one of these forms took on the outline of a dwarfish human being and floated slowly toward him. It poised for a moment above a hawser timber and shook itself, a shower of soot falling from it. Then it settled into a comfortable sitting attitude and looked at him.

"Well, Rooster, how's everything?" The voice was rather small and shrill. Hobo Wilson could not answer at once. He was marveling at the appearance of his strange visitor. The little man was hardly three feet high. Under the slouch hat was a good natured and wrinkled face, decorated on the chin with a tuft of beard, which might have been gray at one time, but which was now blackened and dusty, the same as his face and clothes. The latter were of rough quality-a hickory shirt, a shoddy pair of trousers fringed at the bottoms and held up by one suspender, and a pair of worn shoes much too large and laced with hemp twine.

"Are you down on your luck, Rooster?" asked the little man.

"I'm livin on the air," said Hobo, "but where did you come from?"

"I just dropped in with the smoke Don't know me, eh?"

"That's what; I don't." "Listen, Hobo Wilson. Do you remember last Saturday morning when you were at Hammond and divided your handout with a brother who alighted from a box car a day out from Louisville and very hungry?"

"I do. 'A man's a man for a' that.' "True enough, Rooster. That was a good deed. More than once I've seen you give a comrade a good place on the truck."

"Where was you?"

"I dare say you didn't look up into the rolling cloud of smoke to see the good fairy of the hoboes."

"Fairy!"

"Cert. You didn't expect the guardian fairy of the hoboes to tear around the country in all kinds of weather with a little white robe and some ostrich feather wings?"

"I s'pose not." "Hobo Wilson, I've watched you. 1 never saw you do a pard any dirt. The good things of this world must not all be given to brakemen and farmers and people who work. Are you hungry?"

"Sure!" "Then feel in the pockets of that coat beside you and believe me when I tell you that every man must live before he down and gave him his change. Mr. Wilson tossed 10 cents to a baby on a seat in front of him and then settled back to enjoy his ride. He had never known of a more beautiful day. He observed with much satisfaction that every one else seemed as happy as he. The women in the doorways were smiling, and children romped along the sidewalks. He counted the money from one pocket and found that it amounted to $65, or 1,300 glasses of beer. The other passengers watched him curiously.

He alighted at Polk street and walked over to Dinny's place. The old crowd was there.

"Come up, you fellows," said Mr. Wilson, "and drink all you can hold. I mean it," he added as they did not seem willing to stand up and take chances. "Here's the stuff."

He dribbled out on the bar the silver which the conductor had given him. There was a rush, and Dinny began setting out rows of schooners.

"Drink up that money!" shouted Mr. Wilson, "and say, Dinny, give me a good cigar."

While the boys were taking away the "scuttles" as fast as they could be passed up, Mr. Wilson went out to purchase a wardrobe. He knew the place to go, because he had stood before it many a time looking at the brilliant neckties and white collars. The proprietor met him gruffly, but melted into smiles when he saw the roll of money.

"Fix me up from the skin out," said Mr. Wilson. "Give me the best stuff you've got and hand it out quick. Have you got a back room?"

Certainly he had a back room. Mr. Wilson was shown to that apartment and was treated to every courtesy. One by one the necessary articles were pushed into the room. At the end of ten minutes he was a new man. His neck felt the dignified embrace of a collar for the first time in years. The stiff shirt had straightened him up. He put his money into his new clothes and strolled out. The big officer who had once kicked him moved respectfully aside to allow him to pass. "I'll hire some one to lick that fellow," said Mr. Wilson as he directed his steps toward a fancy barroom. He drank cocktail after cocktail, and the only effect was to increase his general cheerfulness and make every one around him more attentive to his wishes.

"Where's the best restaurant in town?" he asked, leaning over the bar and familiarly addressing the man in the white garments.

"It's two blocks down." "I'll show you where it is," said a man who wore clothes almost as good as those of Mr. Wilson; "come with

Mr. Wilson locked arms with the gentleman, who introduced himself as president of a bank and said he was proud to be allowed to walk along the street with Mr. Wilson. They met several distinguished citizens whose names Mr. Wilson had read in scraps of news paper around the lodging house.

They met the mayor, the postmaster, Mr. Armour, Mr. Field, Mr. Pullman and others. Every time Mr. Wilson was introduced the whole crowd went and had a drink. Mr. Wilson showed them how much money he had, and they slapped him on the back and said he was a good fellow.

At last Mr. Wilson and the banke sat down to dine. They had lobster and pie and champagne and all kinds of drinks, and Mr. Wilson gave the waite a dollar to fan him while he was eating Mr. Wilson ate two lobsters, for the were the first he had tasted in ten 'years and every one in the house watched him when he pulled out such a lot of mone

After that he and the banker went riding in an open carriage, and all the people along the street stopped to see them go by. They halted in front of a saloon and had the bartender bring three bottles of champagne out to the carriage -one for Mr. Wilson, one for the banker and one for the driver.

While they were drinking the champagne out of the bottles a crowd gathered around. Mr. Wilson ordered a policeman to disperse the crowd, and he did so promptly.

"Now, what shall we do next?" asked the banker, putting his arm around Mr. Wilson's neck.

"Oh, take a little ride and then have something more to drink. Drive up there!" and he stood up in the seat and kicked the driver in the back.

So they drove up one street and down another, while the bands played and women at the windows waved handkerchiefs. Mr. Wilson leaned back in the cushions, thoroughly happy and counting his money, when he felt a sudden pain in his right foot.

The pain became more sharp.

He raised himself to his elbow. He was getting the "hot foot." A Neavy policeman was pounding the sole of his shoe. The club was lifted again, but Hobo Wilson drew back his leg.

"Go wan, now! Get a move!" said the policeman, giving him a kick with the broad of his foot.

"Well, I'm goin," whined Hobo Wilson, whose head was all in a whirl as he came to his feet. He picked up his coat and limped around the corner of warehouse F, and at each step the cruel truth became clearer to him.

TOO BIG A DRAIN.

Let the people who are so fond of talking about "discrimination against an American product," when they refer to silver, look at the facts. The most pretentious of them all is that capital is being with drawn from this country as rapidly as it was once sent to it. We have to send abroad, in a normal condition of things probably abcut $100,000,000 a year, as interest and other charges upon foreign investments already here. Put it at the highest estimate, which is $10,000,000 a month. On that basis. $150,000,000 of investments were canceled last year by doubtful foreign capitalists. We have no means of ascertaining what the normal movement of capital to this country per annum would be under favorable circumstances. But if we are to add the cessation of that sum to the $150,000,000 deficit displayed by the trade statistics, we shall see that we are certainly losing from $200,000,000 a year upwards. Can we afford this?

In returning Dr. E. E. Loomis to the office of president, t Janesville Y. M. C. A. showed realization of the faithful work that has been done during the last two years. Upon Dr. Loomis and Secretary Kline the main burden has rested ever since the association building was begun. To advance the project these two men have spared no efforts. They have been helped loyally by a host of others, none more earnest than the iadies' auxiliary, but upon the executive officers the greater share of re- condition without expense except sponsibility devolved. In the case of purchase price. Payments made in a busy professional man such respon- installments running through the sibilities, if fairly met, means sacrifice, but this sacrifice Dr. Loomis made gladly and unfailingly. The association would have crippled itself seriously had it allowed him to retire from his post as he desired.

"What do we care for abroad?" is the contemptuous question of the financiers who would settle the money of a country's position in international trade as to contend that the United States can disregard the opinion of the rest of the world as to a proper standard of value, we commend to him a study of the course of last year's foreign trade.

NEW RULES NEEDED TO RUN THE TOWN

SPECIAL MEETING OF COUNCIL TOMORROW EVENING.

Aldermen Will Be Called Upon to Consider Measures For Charter Changes to Secure Financial Releif, -The Creation of New Wards and Several Other Propositions,

The common council will talk over some meaty questions at the special meeting which Mayor Thoroughgood will call for tomorrow night. The question of the city finance has been brought forward as requiring prompt attention, it being generally admitted Chicago for the amateur championship strongest jaw in town outside of the that some relief must be had. There of Illinois. His last game was with butcher shops and livery stables. He are also other questions which the mayor deems of importance enough to demand serious consideration. The establishing of ward boundaries, or rather the creation of new wards is one proposition that many people are agitating. The last gerrymander of the wards was made for political purposes, and the First and Second wards were robbed of territory which, if no new wards are created, should be restored. The matter must now be fixed up on a non-partisan basis, requiring a three-fourths vote of the affair will be for the Knights of gloves on and mules that didn't have common council. This being the case, the question should be carefully considered and perfected before it is finally disposed of.

Plan For the Work.

It is proposed that the mayor appoint a committee of five aldermen and five citizens to whom the charter changes shall be referred before they are finally adopted, and sent to Madi son to be presented to the legislature. Whatever is accomplished in this line must be through the uniform charter, or through a general law, as no special legislation can be obtained. It is now intimated that the council will not adopt the uniform charter as a whole when that question comes up on February 25. The financial section street, had just settled down for a will be the only one that can possibly quiet evening last night, when the obtain the required number of votes door bell rang and a party of friends to carry it through, it is said, and that entered. affecting the city charter can be obtained, makes it imperative for the people to agree upon some measure which will meet the approval of the legislature when presented as an amendment to the uniform charter, so that all the relief desired may be obtained. One other point in connection with city finances, which should be considered is in relation to the several separate funds. The city has at the present time a large surplus of money in some, while in others there is none. The money belonging to one fund can not be used for any other purpose but the city can borrow and pay interests from banks or individuals, while its own surplus funds rious illness which was circul are earning nothing. However, the suggestion that committee of five alderman and five citizens be appointed by the council to take these matters under consideration is considered a good one. Such a committee would be able to thoroughly digest the financial problem, the question of ward boundaries, or the creation of additional wards; care of the funds regarding interest and the borrowing of money, as well as a number of other points which the increasing growth of the city will call to their attention. The provision for the paving of streets in the present charter was formulated nearly half a century ago, and should be improved, The manner of doing street work should not be lost sight of, as this is the one regulation which receives the severest criticism.

Whatever steps are to be taken should be taken at once, as the time for presenting new business in the legislature is limited, and ample time should be given the committee to consider carefully all these questions.

HOW TO MAKE YOUR OWN DRESSES

HOW TO MAKE THE NEW SKIRTS pressing himself. HANG GRACEFULLY.

Great Care Must Be Taken in Finishing nish their own food. This is the innothe Seams and Taking Up the Plaits. Stiff Interlining of Horsehair Employed. Little Trimming Used.

[Copyright, 1895, by American Press Association. The new skirts are known as the three piece and the five piece skirt, though some dressmakers call them the organ pipe and funnel skirt. There is more labor and time expended on the proper adjustment of these skirts, plain as they appear, than on many an elaborate costume. It is only by the most extreme pains that these skirts become successes, and whoever wishes to make one exactly right will do well to profit by these directions. The three piece skirt is quite as pretty as the five piece and is much easier for the amateur to handle. The first move is to take the material and spread it out and draft out the length, always allowing an extra inch for "take up." Then measure across the tep, so that the doubled fold will reach two-thirds around the waist. Hollow it out three-quarters of an inch in front and mark in four darts, each 5 inches deep and 1½ inches across. These should cause the front to fit smoothly over the hips. If they are not deep enough or too deep, adjust them. The sides slant 5 inches, so that the bottom of the front breadth is 10 inches wider than the top.

The two back breadths measure 11/2 yards each, and the front one three-quarters of a yard, or a yard at the bottom if preferred. The back pieces are cut on the full width of 54 inch goods, and the side joining the front is cut straight on the selvage of the goods and should be drafted so that the straight thread goes from one to the other of the two XX's. The top of the skirt is curved 11/2 inches, and they each measure 18 inches across the top. The back seam comes bias. The three seams are stitched up, pressed flat, and then the facing, which has been cut to exactly fit the outside, is put on.

First comes a deep facing, or full lining of silesea, with an interlining of horsehair or wigan. A bias band of indestructible velutina is then stitched upon both linings, so that when sewed to the dress to turn the velutina is outside. The facing is lined, and herringboned to the outside in invisible stitches. After this it is pressed into perfection. The darts may be left out of the front at the top and small gathers run in to fit it over the hips. The back fullness may be gathered and left to fall in natural folds, or it may be laid in the small box plaits which spread out widely toward the bottom, or it may be laid under in small, flat plaits, two on each side. The model shows a skirt of the same length all around, but by allowing greater length around the back of the two back breadths it can be made a demitrain. The back breadths, which are to fall in round, flat or burnoose plaits, should be lined with wigan, or, better still, haircloth, and when the plaits are taken in at the top they are fastened into their rounded shape by tapes. The three piece skirt is better adapted for street wear than the five piece, and when for that purpose the three breadths must be the exact measure all around. It is quite impossible for any one to make one of these skirts and have it exactly right, and the slightest imperfection shows glaringly, without a dress frame to try it on, or some one to help the maker, who is to wear it. The bias parts are also apt to sag. Some dressmakers put straight lining about 10 inches wide down the sides and catstitch it down. Lining when cut with the dress will sag with it.

It is permissible to have a very little narrow trimming on these skirts, but al-

THREE PIECE SKIRT COMPLETED. most all are severely plain. The richness of the heavy folds of the skirt would lose something of its effect if cheapened by trimming. Enough of that is bestowed upon the corsages.

The amateur will be discouraged more than once before she gets these apparently simple folds into their proper shape, but with the diagrams as guide she will succeed if she perseveres. Those of equal length hang in a manner that has made them so famous. All depends upon the finish of the seams and the laying in of those two or three innocent little plaits. OLIVE HARPER.

It is said that a building something like the above picture will be built in New York city in the near future, the site for it having already been purchased. The proposed building will be about half a mile high and will comprise fifty stories. Iron interspersed with aluminum, with glass and with stone for pictorial effect, will be used chiefly in the construction of the building. This will be a huge oval shell with a spacious court, hotel, theater and spiral driving park of gradual ascent inside the central dome. The arrangement will be such that during summer the sides of this imperceptibly ascending spiral avenue can be thrown open to natural air, while in severe winter weather they can be closed tight, if necessary. The lower part of the huge oval shell will be arranged chiefly for the management of the wholesale business, and on the second floor the employes and workmen in the vast hive will have their quarters. Above this the building will be divided into flats and halls and will furnish a home for about 20,000

This book will be sent sealed, in plain envelope, on receipt of ten cents in stamps to pay postage.

GROCERIES!

GO TO THE BOTTOM.

We are guilty of dividing the loaf with our customers. We make it a point to be of the greatest possible service to those who choose our store to deal in. A point in our favor is, we are paying one-fourth as much rent as we did at our old stand. The other three-fourths we cut off on the price of groceries and give them to our customers.

WE GUARANTEE A SAVING IN EVERY PURCHASE

We have created quite a movement in blankets. This is the time when good warm blankets are a necessity. The activity in our blanket department is all owing to the lively interest we are taking in reducing our stock by reducing figures to a smallness that is attracting the blanket buying public of this city

SEE the $2.79 heavy wool ones in our south window.

SEE the extra heavy and fine cotton blankets that we are letting out at $1.25 a pair.

SEE the sanitary, extra heavy, soft colored Blankets--light brown--at $2.50 a pair.

We have about 219 blankets in our stock, and if low prices mean anything we will not have many left by spring.
